Marina Bilovol attended art school in Ukraine, and has worked as a muralist, art teacher, and paints mostly in oil. Kim Wall comes from a background of artisans and loves painting realistic paintings in watercolor, and abstracts in acrylics. Carol Hemmye's recent retirement is allowing time for her to pursue her pen and inks drawings, some with watercolor accents. Her inspiration ranges from exotic to the mundane. Maria Wellborn, a background in both graphic as well as fine art, shows her skill in her American western themes. She also enjoys the challenge of other subject matter. Sarah Lynn Heller works in watercolor, mostly still lifes. Her delicate oyster paintings show her understanding and feel for her medium.
