PSA AIRLINES AND SKYWARRIOR INC. TO SIGN PARTNERSHIP LAUNCHING NEW ROTOR TRANSITION PROGRAM FOR PROMISING PILOTS

Officials from PSA Airlines and SkyWarrior Inc. will formally sign an industry-leading Rotor Transition Program agreement helping military rotor pilots transition to commercial aviation. PSA is partnering with Pensacola-based SkyWarrior and will contribute up to $23,000 toward flight-time requirements to help military rotor pilots achieve R-ATP.

Most military rotor pilots qualify for the FAA's lowest-minimum restricted ATP. Although many of these pilots have the 750-hour total time, they fall short of the 250-hour fixed-wing PIC requirement or 25 hour multi engine requirement.

PSA's new Rotor Transition Program initiative is just one way PSA Airlines offers the most comprehensive benefits to its pilots. PSA Airlines is the fastest-growing regional airline in the country, and with a true pilot flow through agreement to American, a career as a mainline pilot for the largest airline in the world can start with this program.
