Open ears and an open mind are the essence of singer, guitarist and songwriter Robert Cray's approach to writing, recording and playing music. He has created a sound that rises from American roots and arrives today both fresh and familiar. In just over 40 years, Cray and his band have recorded 20 studio releases and have played concert halls and arenas around the world. Four years ago, Cray was inducted into the Blues Hall of Fame.

On August 28, the Mascot Label Group will celebrate the vibrancy of Cray Band's rocking rootsy blues, soul-filled ballads and timeless R & B with the release of "4 Nights of 40 Years Live." Through clips of concerts from the 80s and four recent shows, the evolution from the Cray Band unfolds. The 3-piece set includes interviews with Eric Clapton, Keith Richards, Bonnie Raitt, Jimmy Vaughan and Buddy Guy that will put the band in perspective.
