The Fish House and Pensacola Police Department team up for "Tip-a-Cop" benefiting Special Olympics Florida

Join us at the Fish House on Monday, May 16, 2016, and help us support Special Olympics Florida with "Tip-a-Cop." The Pensacola Police Department will trade in their handcuffs for the day to spend both lunch and dinner serving you. 100 percent of the tips you donate to the officers will benefit Special Olympics Florida who provides sports training and competition for individuals with intellectual disabilities. The "Tip-a-Cop" program is one of many where law enforcement personnel organize a variety of community events to raise funds and awareness.

Pensacola Police officers will serve as celebrity servers, shadowing our Fish House team for lunch service beginning at 11:00 a.m. and then again for dinner service beginning at 5:00 p.m. Uniformed officers will assist with serving and in return will ask for a special "tip" that will be placed in the Special Olympics envelopes that will be given to each table. Sergeant Jimmy Donohoe, Special Projects Sergeant with the Pensacola Police Department is heading up the event at the Fish House. "It's nice to have partners in our community come together and support a special cause," says Donohoe.

The Fish House has its own Special Olympics Olympian, Thang Nguyen. According to Collier Merrill, president of Great Southern Restaurants, "Thang has worked at the Fish House for ten years. Over those years he has participated in the Olympics on a local, state and national level. The Special Olympics are very important to us and very important to these Olympians that participate, so we hope the community will come support the cause on Monday, May 16."
